Farmwell Station Middle School in Loudoun County, Virginia studied Flying South

In April 2006, Farmwell Station Middle School in Loudoun County, Virginia studied Flying

South in a “One Book-One Community” project. All students, teachers, and administrators read the novel and participated in discussion groups. Students did research into the 1960s and produced art projects.
Their work was creative and insightful, including movie star casts for a film version (Jack Nicholson for Doc!); an inventive “fly-opoly” board game; and an elaborate claymation-style shadow box scene of Alice’s house and gardens, complete with ground-hog.
