

Father-Son Book Club reading of Under a War-torn Sky

Christy L. Martin, Library Media Specialist, Midlothian Middle School, Midlothian, VA, explains:

“Midlothian Middle School’s Father/Son book club meets mornings before school from 7:30-8:15am. Participants help themselves to a light breakfast (coffee, donuts, bagels, juice) when they arrive. (We charge $2 to cover the cost of food and supplies) We begin with discussion about the book, about 15 minutes (usually we start with characters), then move to an activity that has something to do with the book or a character in the book. For Under A War-Torn Sky, since Henry is a bomber pilot, the boys, with the help of their fathers, made paper airplanes. I found templates online. We suspended a hula-hoop from the ceiling and the boys tried to fly their planes through the hoop.

Paper Airplane website:

<http://www.amazingpaperairplanes.com/Favorites.html>